Greeting.

YEAR after year has passed and life at Bridgewater has steadily gone onward and outward. For the past few years we have endeavored to catch the many phases of the every day life, and reflect them from the pages of our year book. This is the purpose of this year's "Normal Offering." Changes in its content have been made, yet they are but the reflection of changes in the school.

The Editorial Board of the "Normal Offering" of 1920 extend their greeting and present this, the twenty-second annual publication of the book, trusting that it will prove of interest to teachers, students, alumni, and friends.

WHEN it comes to putting in cold, merciless type, the part played by our mothers and fathers in our lives, we find it an utter impossibility to sum up in terms of actual values of life, the influences exerted by our mothers and fathers. Perhaps Lincoln's words "All that I am, or ever hope to be, I owe to my mother," would apply with equal force to our mothers and fathers.

Looking backward through history, we find that many of our truly great men and women owed their successes in life, primarily, to their parents. In like manner, we owe everything to our parents. To many of them the expense of keeping us with the comforts and luxuries of life, means the acceptance of a burden, far from light, but cheerily accepted, because of their faith in us.

It is this spirit of self-sacrifice, devotion, faith and love that characterizes the mother and father the world over. We have a large contract ahead of us when we set out to justify their faith in us, but justify it we must, regardless of the cost to us. Are you willing to even consider what the results of failure would mean to those to whom you owe everything? Because we realize, although we are incapable of expressing our great debt to our parents, we are very happy in dedicating our 1920 Normal Offering to our Mothers and Fathers.

In recognition of the love, sacrifice, and devotion of those at home, who have enabled us to carry out our ideals, we affectionately dedicate our Year-Book to

Our Mothers and Fathers

Editorial.

A GAIN, it is June, and all Normal is eagerly awaiting the day when the 1920 "Normal Offering" will be ready for distribution. As editors of this volume of the "Normal Offering," we have endeavored faithfully to keep this year's issue up to the standards of other years, and yet to improve it. This has been no easy thing to do, for the standard set for us in past years has been a high one and one difficult to improve. However, we have at least tried; and in this, the twenty-second volume of the "Normal Offering" we offer you our best efforts. It is always the aim of the editors, year after year, to build a more worthy and lasting monument in the form of the "Normal Offering," and this year we hope we have not fallen short in our attempts.

This year has been an exceptionally hard one for the board of editors, for any number of reasons, evident to all, and yet we venture to say that there has never been a better spirit of co-operation existing between the Editor-in-Chief and the members of her staff.

The Editor-in-Chief wishes to take this opportunity to thank the following people who have been of such great help to her, that she feels that these few words fall very far short of adequately expressing her thanks.

To the Assistant Editor Miss MacPherson, and the Art Editors, Miss White and Miss MacCarthy:

In the history of the Normal Offering we have not had a more capable and efficient Assistant Editor than it has been our privilege to work with this year. As for the Art Editors, we feel that, to a great extent, the success of this volume is due to your untiring efforts and skillful accomplishments.

To the Associate Editors:

We can only say that if in years to come the Editors-in-Chief have as willing and capable a board of Associate Editors, then indeed will they be fortunate.

To Miss Moses, Miss Pierce, and Mr. Jackson:

We extend our hearty thanks to the members of the English

Department, who have aided us so materially in the organization of our material.

And lastly, our sincere gratitude, to any and all who have contributed either directly or indirectly to the success of this book.

This year the Board decided to offer ten dollars in gold for prizes, in order to give an added incentive to contributors. The first prize, a five dollar gold piece, was won by Elizabeth Sumner '20, the winning story being entitled "Bobbie Wins Out." Mary Nottingham '20 won the second prize, a two and a half dollar gold piece, with her Class History, written in verse. "The Ballad of the Pin," a poem by Ruth Sladen '21, won the third prize, a two and a half dollar gold piece. Our congratulations to the winners!

We trust that, in future years, when looking over these pages, you may derive pleasure, enjoyment, happiness, and a keen realization of the fact that some of your most profitable years were spent at Bridgewater Normal School.

SERVICE.

O, Seniors wise and learned,
O, Juniors strong and true,
O, all you Normal Students
A duty waits for you!

Soon you must face life's battle,
Soon hear the trumpet call
Which shall lead you forth to service,
To conquer, not to fall.

And through your term of service,
May your motto ever be,
"To minister unto others,"
For this is the master-key.

MILDRED WEBB '21.

Changes in Normal Faculty.

Miss Elizabeth Pope is taking the place of Mrs. Newell this year as our new Dean. We welcome her heartily and will work with her to the success of her new work. Miss Pope taught formerly in Quincy and in the Training School of B. N. S.

Miss Elizabeth Gillies of Wakefield, R. I., came here for the first part of this year as substitute for Miss Pritchard, former librarian. Miss Gillies graduated from Simmons College in 1918 and held the position of librarian in the R. I. State Normal in 1919. She left us in March and is now in the library at Boston University. Miss Gillies was well liked by all and all expressed regret at her leaving and the hope of success for her in her new work.

Miss Edith Bradford came this year as a French Instructor. Miss Bradford graduated from the University of Vermont in 1915 and has formerly been teaching in High schools.

We were very happy to welcome Miss Damon as our new librarian. Miss Damon came here from New York State, where she had been doing similar work.

Changes in Model Faculty.

This year saw many changes in the Model School Faculty. Mr. Brenelle Hunt became one of the Normal School Faculty. His place was taken by Miss Martha Burnell, who had been an eighth grade teacher in the Model School for many years. Miss Burnell has always been held in the esteem of both the townspeople and the Normal School and we are all glad to see her assume this new position.

The institution of the Junior High School in Bridgewater has brought about many changes. It necessitated increasing the Model School Faculty.

We have two new third grade teachers, Miss Charlotte Thompson and Mrs. Isabel Riddell. Miss Thompson graduated from Fitchburg Normal School and has taken a summer course at Columbia. Before coming to Bridgewater she taught in Norwood. Mrs. Riddell came to us from Quincy and is one of our own graduates. She has also taken a course at Columbia.

Miss Harriett Gannett is our new fourth grade teacher. She is a graduate of Boston University with the degree of B. A., a graduate of New Britain State Normal School, and has studied at Emerson College of Oratory. Miss Gannett last taught in New Britain, Connecticut.

Miss Louise Borchers, the new fifth grade teacher, is a graduate of Fitchburg Normal School and has taken courses at Columbia and Boston University. Miss Borchers has been teaching in Norwood.

FRIENDSHIPS.

Friendship is a golden word,
Rich in truth and love,
In it—much of loveliness
Each blessed by power above.
Never let strife nor quarrel
Darken Friendship's brow,
Sacred is her meaning;
Hold close her vow.
I have a friend—she's true.
Ponder deeply now.—Have you?

The Prom.

FRIDAY, the thirteenth, an unlucky day you say? Not in the annals of the class of June 1919, Bridgewater Normal School! There never dawned a more perfect day than Friday, June thirteenth, 1919. And the night was even more wonderful—a perfect June night—ideally fitted for a Prom night. Who could ask for anything better than to have old “Mister Moon” shining in all his glory, and silently looking down and enjoying all the festivities that mark a prom at Bridgewater, as the distinctive social feature of the year.

As usual, prom was held in the Albert Gardner Boyden gymnasium, which was very prettily decorated with green oak boughs, banners, and potted plants. In the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. Boyden and the presidents of the three graduating classes.

The various proms were led by the class officers, each one taking a different form. At midnight as the last note died away, the class of June 1919 was heard to declare that never before had there been such a prom, and never, in the future, would there be a better one.

Baccalaureate.

BACCALAUREATE Sunday, June twenty-second, at four o'clock, the class of 1919, gathered in the Assembly Hall for Vespers. A most inspiring address on the "Evolution of Better Things" was given by our principal, Arthur Clarke Boyden. As a speaker Mr. Boyden has an individual charm that grips his audience and keeps it intent on each thought he develops. Several pleasing selections were rendered by the Glee Club. The class of 1919 will long remember this afternoon as one of their red-letter ones.

K. E. C. '20.

Faculty Reception.

FACULTY Reception, one of the big events of Commencement Week, was held Wednesday evening, June twenty-fifth, nineteen hundred and nineteen, in the Gymnasium from eight until eleven o'clock. In the receiving line were all the members of the faculty. The grand march was led by Mr. Boyden with Miss Ferguson, and Mrs. Boyden with Mr. Casey. After a short period of dancing, Mr. Hunt presented a new invention of his, a mechanical device, which, when cranked, brought to life the beloved nursery characters found in "Mother Goose."

Miss Moffat as "Mother Goose," Mr. Bixby as "Little Boy Blue," and Mr. Sinnott as "Little Jack Horner," were the hits of the evening. Merriment reigned supreme as each character was introduced to the audience. After the entertainment, refreshments were served in the balcony and the evening came to a close with a grand march led by Miss Pinnick and Mr. Casey.

Then the Seniors gathered for the last time as a class in the quadrangle, and sang their school songs, ending with Alma Mater. Ten minutes after the Seniors were in the dormitory the Juniors serenaded them, as is customary after Faculty Reception. And so ended the last real day as undergraduates, for on the next day they became graduates of Normal and members of the Alumni of Normal.

Graduation.

AT last, the never to be forgotten day had arrived. Thursday, June twenty-sixth, graduation day, dawned bright and clear. From the time the rising bell rang in the morning, there was a hushed note of excitement in the air. Visitors began to arrive early and soon the streets outside Normal were crowded with machines from all over the state. At ten o'clock, the members of the graduating classes were all in their places in Chapel. Prayer was offered by Mr. Boyden and the response sung by the Glee Club.

Mr. Boyden then introduced Dr. Payson Smith, Commissioner of Education for Massachusetts, who gave the graduates a purposeful, interesting address, on the duties awaiting them as they went forth to prepare their places in the educational world. After a pleasing selection by the Glee Club, Dr. Smith presented the diplomas, and the class of 1919 passed on to become alumni of Bridgewater.

The Ivy March.

COMPARATIVELY few of those who gaze each year at the Ivy March, as it is given here at Normal, realize that it is something more than just an Ivy March, ending with the commonplace planting of a bit of ivy. Commonplace? Ah, no! Symbolic of love and devotion, expressive of human life? Yes!

At the appointed time, members of the Junior Class, green oak boughs in hand, may be seen forming on either side of the walk that leads to the school. Boughs raised high, they typify the living strength of the school. Clear, piercing, distinct, come the notes of the bugle, sounding the call to life with its manifold duties, and as the echoes die away, the members of the graduating classes, marching two by two, pass on to the Campus, the field of life.

As the Campus is reached, the double line changes to one of single file, illustrating the manner in which the individual life becomes of more pronounced importance; for the greater problems of life are solved by the individual alone, with the assistance only of a Divine Aid.

The graduates, ivy garlands in hand, encircle Campus Pond, which symbolizes, in the images of themselves which they see reflected in its waters, the truth that all we do is reflected in life's mirrors to our credit or dishonor. Next they stand near the spot where the ivy is to be planted, and hear just a few words from their president before they part for class day exercises. And to the listeners, comes the thought that, after all, life is but a classroom, golden with opportunities. The classroom of life with all it contains, is theirs to use to the utmost; to develop, to improve, and to brighten with cheerful, devoted service. Then, the ivy is planted, a symbol of love and affection for Alma Mater, and the graduates go on to meet life, still a question to some, but one demanding ever the best they are capable of giving. So in the words of Corinne Roosevelt Robinson in her poem "Life, a Question," the graduates of Normal may well say:—

"Life? and worth living?
Yes, with each part of us—
Hurt of us, help of us, hope of us, heart of us,
Life is worth living.
Ah! with the whole of us,
Will of us, brain of us, senses and soul of us!
Is life worth living?
Aye, with the best of us,
Heights of us, depths of us,—
Life is the test of us."

Bobbie Wins Out.

Prize Story.

"I wonder who sent this letter," murmured Marion Harding as she sorted her morning mail. "It has an Indiana postmark."

The letter enclosed proved to be very short and to the point.

Dear Madam:

We regret to inform you of the death of your kinswoman, Mrs. Mary Harris. She leaves in your charge her only son, Robert. He leaves here tomorrow and will reach New York next Friday.

Yours, etc.

It was signed by the inevitable lawyer.

"Well, Jim," said Marion to her husband a little later, "Bobbie is on his way East to us. He is just the age, Jim, Junior would have been if he had lived. Of course I mean to do well for the child but I couldn't bear to have him live here. It would recall our loss too keenly."

"I can see how you feel," returned Mr. Harding, "but what is to become of the boy?"

"I have a plan," said his wife. "You remember Fannie Greene, who went to Normal School when I did? She married a poor farmer. I'm sure she'll be glad of the chance to earn some money; a farmer's wife always is. We'll board Bobbie at her farm!"

So it was that the little orphan's journey ended at the peaceful farm in Willow Valley. He was a sunny little fellow of seven summers and made many friends among farmer folk.

There was one cloud in his childish sky. "Why don't I ever see my Aunt Marion? Why don't I live with her? Mother said she was a perfectly beautiful lady."

"She is a perfectly beautiful lady," replied kind Mrs. Greene. "Some day she'll come down here to see you."

"Will she come soon? I hope she'll bring me some candy," continued the lad, lifting anxious blue eyes.

One day Aunt Marion really did come and she found the little lad eagerly waiting for her at the end of the lane. "Are you my Aunt Marion?" he asked, reaching for her hand. "You are a perfectly beautiful lady, just as Mother said."

Later that afternoon, Mrs. Harding sat with Bobbie perched on her knee. She had not intended to fondle the child, but there he was. "An' you'll come again, lots of times" he asked seriously.

Mrs. Harding did go again, lots of times. She didn't realize it, but inch by inch little Bobbie was gaining her affection.

II

It was in the middle of a windy March night that Mrs. Harding was called to the telephone. "Yes. . . . . Greene's farmhouse is burning? and Bobbie Harris isn't out? Yes, I'll be as soon as I can. Good-bye."

She didn't feel as calm as her voice sounded. By the time she reached the scene of the fire her heart was beating wildly, for she knew in those few minutes how much she cared for the boy.

Near the burning house she found a group of farmers who had dressed hastily and rushed to help their neighbors. Mrs. Harding sought her friend in this group.

"Where is Bobbie? Isn't he out yet?" she demanded.

"He was sleeping upstairs while John and I were sleeping on the ground floor. We jumped through the window and barely escaped with our lives. But the little one! I shall never forgive myself." Poor Fannie went on in this strain for some minutes.

"The barn is catching!" cried one of the fire fighters, and some of the men charged for the barn to get the cattle and horses out.

"What's in the hay?" asked one of them and picking up the slight bundle, they found it to be a soundly sleeping little Bobbie.

"Look at the big fire," he said drowsily. "And here's Aunt Marion! I slept in the barn because Johnnie Jones dared me to. I was scared, but I did it. Was I naughty not to tell Mrs. Greene? Why Aunt Marion, you're crying; what's the matter?"

"There isn't anything the matter," she said happily. "I'm crying because I'm so glad to have you here safe in my arms, my own little boy!"

The Ballad of the Pin.

Prize Poem.

---

There were three brothers, you must know,
Who all ambition did possess;
And they agreed that each should go
To find the way to Happiness.

The first three hours should be gone
Before the second should depart.
The third should give the second one
Three hours more to get a start.

The eldest had the precedence
To his garage he took his way.
He cranked his Ford with confidence
That he would have success that day.

A half a mile he journeyed hence
When to a forking road he came;
And there he saw upon a fence,
In letters large and bold the name,

"To Happiness," nor read he more
But turned to right as e'er he'd been,
Nor knew that he'd have saved a score
Of miles had he the other ta'en.

But finally he reached the town,
And by a side street entered there,
And on a side street settled down.
Good luck and bad have found him ne'er.

Meanwhile the second brother thin
While walking through the garden greene,
Before him he beheld a pin
His elder brother had not seen.

He "saw a pin and let it lay,"
Too lazy he to move it was.
"Bad luck will follow him all day,"
Or so declares the well-known clause.

He cranked his Dodge and took his seat
And went the way his brother had
Until he reached the parting street:
What there he saw did make him glad.

"To Happiness 'tis fifty miles
If by the right-hand road you wind.
If by the left in thirty miles
You shall your destination find."

So to the left this brother turned
At fifty miles an hour did ride
Until a notice overturned
And lying in the street he spied.

Too lazy for to stop and read
What warning this might have to give
He sped around and on. This deed
Decreed the hours he had to live.

For six yards on, around a bend,
The roadway had been washed away
And left a narrow path to wend.
That Dodge fell thirty yards that day.

The third and youngest brother gay,
Determined to attain success,
Had now set out to make assay
To find the way to Happiness.

He saw the pin his brothers passed,
And so he stooped and picked it up
Not thinking of the old forecast
That all the day he'd have good luck.

Then up the hill and down the dale
He did his chummy roadster guide;
He followed in his brother's trail
'Till suddenly the sign he spied.

"To Happiness 'tis fifty miles
If by the right-hand road you wind.
If by the left, in thirty miles
You shall your destination find."

So to the left this brother turned;
At thirty miles an hour did ride
Until the notice overturned
And lying in the street he spied.

He stopped and jumped into the road,
Upraised the board erect once more,
And read the danger it forbade.
He went the washout to explore

When lo! he saw a maid in tears.
She did not know the way around.
The brother soon allayed her fears
And said he'd carry her to town.

He took her in his roadster then
And soon to Happiness they came.
Their wedding bells have rung since then,
And life is as the city's name.

The second brother failed, we see
Because although his eyes were keen
To see the pin and sign, yet he
Too lazy was to act, we've seen.

The eldest brother's eyes were dull,
His opportunity it cost.
What folly 'tis to scorn the rule
Which states the truth with no words lost!

A Serious Mistake.

As Mary Gilmore descended the stairs of the boarding school to meet her friends who were going to the Annual School Ball, she met the Dean with whom she was very friendly.

They discussed the ball for a few minutes and then Mary removed her coat to show the dean her new evening dress. As she did so, a shining silver object dropped from her pocket to the stairs. The dean picked it up, looked at it, saw the initials, M. G., and passed it to Mary with the severe remark: "Yours, I believe."

Mary took it—a cigarette case. She could not have dropped it, but where had it come from, and with her initials, too?

Smoking was forbidden in the school, and to have the dean find her with a cigarette case led Mary to spend a very unpleasant evening in spite of the zealous efforts of her friends to cheer her up. At eleven o'clock Mary said she had a headache and went home.

The other girls, returning from the party, came to her room to ask how she felt and found her crying. She could not explain her deep trouble so they consoled her as best they could before leaving her for the night.

The following morning, after a sleepless night, Mary was summoned to the dean's office and asked to explain how she had happened to have a cigarette case in her possession. She could only say that she did not know where it came from and that it was not hers. Yet there were Mary's initials, so what could the dean think? She reprimanded Mary severely and then sent her to her room to think the matter over.

Mary had scarcely returned to her room when her friend, Jean Kirkpatrick, entered and asked: "Have you found anything in the pocket of your coat which I wore the evening I went to the party with Milton Gregory?"

Mary replied that she had not. Then Jean told her that on the evening when she went to the party with Milton, he dropped his cigarette case. One of the girls picked it up and gave it to her to return to him as he was not in the room at the time when it was found. She had placed the cigarette case in the pocket of Mary's coat and had forgotten to give it to him, and now she had lost it.

But Mary did not allow her to say more, she sprang up to her dresser, opened a box, took from it a cigarette case, and asked if that were it.

Jean recognized it, took it, and danced joyously out of the room to return it to Milton, while Mary, very much relieved, went to explain to her dean.

A Visit to Woodward During Study Hours.

If you will promise to be very quiet and to walk on your toes, unless you have rubber heels, I will take you thru Woodward tonight during Study Hour. We must wear our invisible cloaks because visitors on a study hour night are an unheard-of thing. We shall have to wait at the door until some tardy "Normalite" comes and with a penitent air rings an appealing note on the bell, pleading for admittance. We silently slip in behind her and draw a long breath, for we are really inside.

A hush greets us. Is it possible that one hundred and eighty girls can keep so quiet? We stand in awe for a minute wondering whether to break the sanctity of the halls, when a girl comes down the corridor with a note book (please remember she carries a notebook) and disappears into one of the rooms. Soon gay voices and laughter—hushed laughter to be sure—came from that room. Isn't it wonderful that girls of these strenuous times enjoy their lessons so? We give you credit, teachers, for making that note-book so enjoyable and capable of producing mirth. Soon more girls with more notebooks—always with notebooks—come into view only to disappear behind closed doors. These are not social calls, I must explain to you, but are for the purpose of furthering our extensive knowledge.

Sniff! Sniff! Mingled odors of toast, fudge, and cocoa float tantalizingly thru the building. Are the girls having parties in study hour? Never! But you know how much easier it is to study and nibble than to study and long to nibble.

Darkness! Where is the light! Oh! That was just the first blink. It is ten o'clock and study hour is over. Doors open as if by clockwork; girls in attractive kimonas appear; confidences are whispered in dark corners; tooth brush drills are held, last good-nights are said. Darkness again! Quiet reigns.

Perhaps you know of so many effects both good and bad, by which the War has been followed, that you wonder what addition I have to make. It may surprise you but instead of telling anything about countries, peoples or Red Cross nurses, my story concerns particularly just one person and that person a New Englander, to be more exact a New England maiden.

Of course you may know many of them who were concerned with war work and the like. But I'm very sure you know none who at all resemble my protege. She was called Priscilla Jane Worth. In appearance she was exactly the opposite of what you might expect, being small with brown hair and eyes and on the whole, she was very meek looking. If you required it she would admit that when the war started she was twenty-seven years old, etc. You may never have heard of the place where she had always lived, since it was an insignificant little village called White Valley. Few people lived here and nearly all were descended from a line of strict Puritan ancestors, as was Priscilla. The home that Priscilla occupied was on the outskirts of the village and was presided over by Aunt Eliza. She had been in power ever since the death of Priscilla's parents and still regarded her niece as a child.

When the War began, Aunt Eliza had been incensed to have such murdering going on and would have nothing to do or say concerning it. Of course Priscilla did likewise and when the soldiers and sailors of the United States went to do their part it had little or no effects on this one home. One couldn't wholly blame them, though, since they lived so far from any actual contact with those concerned.

So life went on in its usual monotonous way for Priscilla, that is until one day when a package arrived for her. You can't imagine the excitement it caused as you have never lived in such a place but you will realize something of it, when I say that Aunt Eliza, herself, was hardly able to manage the situation. The mysterious package turned out to be a dress, a dear little silk dress of blue with bits of pink for trimming. Priscilla and Aunt Eliza gazed with astonishment and suddenly the former cried, in accents much too loud for a well brought up young lady, "Oh, I do hope it fits."

"Priscilla!" called her aunt in shocked tones, coming to her senses again. "You surely don't intend to wear it. Why your father has only been in his grave five years and your mother but little more. Have you no respect for them?"

So it happened the wonderful dress was returned to the box, where a note had been found explaining its arrival from a distant cousin. It was then put away, but every day its owner stole a look at the treasure and terrible to tell, each time a wish began to grow to wear it. Poor Priscilla was certainly straying toward the wrong path.

The days went by and about a month afterward Aunt Eliza decided to go to town. Of course her niece helped her get ready and dutifully received many instructions as to what was to be done during the day.

You would expect Priscilla to follow this program but, although it seems almost incredible, Aunt Eliza had scarcely disappeared when her irreproachable niece crept stealthily up the stairs. Now you understand what was to happen and in a few moments the awful deed was accomplished. The dress fitted perfectly and now, another thought came; perhaps it would be all right if she curled her brown hair a little in the front. Surely she would look more suited to the youthful dress. So, after a few false starts, little wrinklets began to appear, looking surprising natural. Soon all was finished and Priscilla made a picture both young and pleasing, although all her Puritan principles seemed to have fled.

A sort of fear came over her, however, when she thought of Aunt Eliza and in the midst of repentant thoughts she started, for she seemed to hear the door bell. A few seconds later left no room for doubt, as a second peal resounded through the house. It is said that the wicked all get punished sooner or later and for poor Priscilla it was certainly coming sooner than expected. She was so nervous she could hardly stand and her cheeks grew red as fire, as she thought of her humiliation if it were anyone she knew. Heroically pulling herself together, she finally tiptoed to the window and looked. She could see no one and was obliged to go to the door. Tremblingly she opened it and looked up.

"Oh, good morning," said the eager voice of,—who do you suppose?—one of our boys in khaki. Relief came to Priscilla and she smiled, really smiled at the male character.

"Good morning."

"You are Grace Long, aren't you?"

"Oh, no, the Longs live down the road, quite a long way."

"Why, I thought you were my cousin. This is the first time I've been this way and I just got a short furlough to come and see my relations."

Then he smiled, tipped his hat and went away. From the window behind the curtain Priscilla watched him, for she was young and had met few young men yet. She thought he was very nice and it's safe to say he thought the same of her, for he had never seen her as the Puritan maiden. And from then on the war began to affect Priscilla.

Although all signs of the day's secret were carefully kept from Aunt Eliza's prying eyes, that observant lady noticed a new air about her niece. And, too, she wondered a few days later, that the young lady went to visit the Longs.

For you, who know the secret, the rest follows naturally. Priscilla took to knitting soldiers' garments and incidentally to helping Grace read her soldier cousin's letters. Aunt Eliza, not to be outdone, began to see if she, too, could regain the lost art. Indeed the army engaged at home in supporting the boys was greatly helped by these rather late recruits.

As for Priscilla herself, this work as well as benefiting the soldiers, began to do wonders in changing her. She had found happiness in working for others and looked forward to another time, when she would wear her dear little blue dress—after the War was done.

A MAN.

The sun was slowly setting,
Behind the distant hill,
When from Woodward dormitory
Came a shout both loud and shrill.

With throbbing hearts and eager feet,
From every room we ran.
"What has happened? Tell us, do!"
"Oh, girls! I saw a man!"

The Tragedy of Slang.

At Normal School one happy year
There lived a girl of tender age,
She spoke a language all her own,
'Twas understood by no one sage.

If she was asked, "Is this done right?"
She'd answer, "Sure, I'll say it is,"
And when they asked her where she'd been
'Twould be, "I guess it's not your biz."

Her elders all were "full of coke,"
'I'll tell the world," she used to say.
And when she called her friends to her,
She shouted, "Hi" or "Here" or "Hey!"

The things that happened were to her
Just "simply swell" or else "quite wild,"
To every one she met she'd say,
"This place is tame and far too mild."

She left this school to go away
Out in the world to teach the young;
But by her slang, upon my word!
She had those children quite unstrung.

The superintendent quite sedate
Called on her one bright afternoon,
The recitations there he heard
And saw the difficulty soon.

He told the girl that slang was bad,
That nothing really could be worse;
"Oh pardon me for smiling but I'll Hardly need a nurse."

The superintendent told the maid,
That teaching never suited her;
She packed her trunk and went away
And said, "That Sup's an ugly cur!"

So heed my warning, classmates fair,
Or you will come to some like fate,
Just stop right now from using slang,
Before you find it's much too late.

A Balcony by the Sea Shore.

CHARACTERS

Ellen Caswell
Mrs. Caswell
Nellie, Ellen's chum
Richard Hartman, unknown.
Ralph Kennedy, aviator
Three other aviators
Many on-lookers.

DRAMA

(Much confusion, people taking seats. As Ellen and Ralph enter, they go up to where Mrs. Caswell is sitting. Ralph carries his cap.)

Mrs. Caswell—"Why, how do you do, Ralph? Don't you feel nervous about being in the race?"

Ralph—"Yes, I am rather excited; it is time I went down to my machine." (Looking at his watch.)

(Ralph starts to put on his cap, Ellen goes up to him.)

Ellen—"Ralph, do let me be the noble lady, who fastens the strap for the chivalrous knight. In olden days the ladies fastened on the spurs instead."

(Ellen fastens the strap. Ralph departs after shaking hands.)

Crowd—"Good luck, Ralph; don't forget to speed her up."

Nellie—"Who will win, Ellen?"

Ellen—"Oh, I don't know; I think them all excellent speeders when it comes to sea-planes, but Homer is the reckless one."

Nellie—"I wonder if any will stand as high as Richard Hartman, who never returned after that wonderful flight in France."

Mrs. Caswell—"Girls, there are five machines lined up; how is that? There were only going to be four contestants."

(Crowd looks, points, and talks.)

Nellie—"That is not right; he should not be allowed to take part when we have not the slightest idea who he is."

Mrs. Caswell—"Girls, the whistle is blowing, if you want to see them start you had better stop talking." (Taps each on the back.)

Crowd—"They start; they start!"

Nellie—"Look, Ellen! See! Ralph is ahead!"

(She points; the crowd cheers.)

Girls—"See! They are all in line. No, Donald speeds ahead."

Ellen—"Look, that old unknown plane is ahead. Oh! he is horrid; I hate him!" (Rises to her feet and stamps them.)
"If he wins, I will not pin a medal on him. No, I won't, I won't!"

Mrs. Caswell—"Ellen, you'll have to prepare to pin your medal on the unknown, I'm afraid."

Ellen—"I guess I will not; it is not fair; I'll tell him so."

Nellie—"The unknown wins; he wins."

Crowd—(Shouts) "Hurrah!"

Mrs. Caswell—"Here he comes escorted by the others."

(The unknown is ushered before Ellen; she rises with coldness and dignity.)

Ellen—"I request that before this medal is pinned upon your coat that you remove your cap and glasses that we may all see to whom the honor is given."

(The unknown removes his cap.)

Crowd—"Why, it is Richard Hartman. The lost Richard."

(Ellen with tears of joy, pins on the medal at the same time bestowing a swift kiss upon his coat sleeve.)

Richard—"Why, it is you, Ellen."

(He clasps her hands tightly in his own. Forgetting the surging crowd, they walk out arm in arm. Confusion follows; every one looks for Richard.)

People—"Where is Richard? Is this the way to do, I'd like to know?"

(Nellie looks everywhere for Ellen.)

Nellie—"Mrs. Caswell, I can not understand where Ellen has gone."

(A boy enters with a letter; it is handed to Mrs. Caswell, she reads—)

"Excuse us for making such an abrupt exit; we could not help it as we thought only of each other. You may explain to the others.

Richard and Ellen."

"Normal Saws."

---

Silence is golden—but a perfect recitation is platinum."

Exams never come singly.

She who laughs at the end of the term, laughs best.

Better late than absent.

To pass or not to pass, that is the question.

There's many a bluff 'twixt 9.30 A. M. and 1.30 P. M.

Every exam has its day.

A little vacation now and then is relished by the wisest of us.

It is a wise student who knows when she's going to be called on next.

A lazy student gathers no "A's."

Patient students never flunk.

A good bluff covers a multitude of sins.

The daily work of the species is more deadly than the exams.

Never study today what you can put off 'till tomorrow in a spare period.

A "D" to the wise is sufficient.

In Bridgewater.

---

One Autumn day
Sad, sad to say
A Junior arrived
In Bridgewater.

She little knew
All she'd have to do
To keep up her mark
In Bridgewater.

To Chapel she went (Heavenward bent)
She started in well
In Bridgewater.

The program she read
And decided 'twas dead,
But—never say “dead”
In Bridgewater.

In Room 23
She hopped like a flea.
They do funny things
In Bridgewater.

She cut up a bee
A proboscis to see
And then she got stung
In Bridgewater.

In Music, too,
She sounded “do, do”
A melody heard
In Bridgewater.

So finally, you see,
She decided like me
That things are not “dead”
In Bridgewater.

T. C.

---

Since Nature with all her wondrous charms,
 Extends to us such cordial arms,
 Should we not always seek to find
 The interpretation of her kind.

For such a purpose stands T. C.
 And all its members quite agree,
 That information along this line,
 Is worthy of our precious time.

So once a month the T. C.'s meet
 And at the Greenhouse gaily greet,
 While Mr. Stearns directs our work,
 Mindful that none are there who shirk.

Cuttings, graftings, and the like
We make down there with all our might;
Moreover, when our work we've done,—
Refreshments, jollity and fun.

We stand for love of Nature's world,
And to us, Nature is unfurled,
And she who visits T. C. night,
Will find her heart filled with delight.

Blue Bloods.

---

In Physiology one day,—
I learned that blue blood is impure;
And also when it turns to red,
It then is very nearly pure.
And instantly there crossed my mind
That certain rich folks make the claims,
That they, by birth and parentage
Have naught but blue blood in their veins,
And also claim that other folk,
The "commonfolk" as "blue-bloods" say,
Have naught but red blood in their veins,
And therefore aren't so good as they.
The Physiologists assert,
That each should have in equal shares
Blue blood and red, impure and pure,
And, if these people's claim that their
Is blue throughout,—if this be true,
I should expect that they would be
Unfit in body and in mind,
To live up to their pedigree.
And, therefore, if I could not have
Both kinds of blood in me, I fear
That I should rather have the red
And let the "blue-bloods" at me sneer.

Which Counts?

NOW you may pick up your worm between your fingers, feel of it carefully, and tell me what the texture of the skin is."

The Seniors were engaged in a laboratory period in Zoology and their lesson was an intensive study of the class Vermes, the humble worm. Betty picked up the worm and nonchalantly ran her fingers down his back. Then a tiny groan caught her ear and as she looked across the table she almost sneered.

Dainty Doris was sitting in a helpless attitude looking at the worm wriggling before her. She made one or two movements as if to pick it up.

"Oh, I can't touch it," she said, and looked appealingly at Betty as if asking her not to laugh.

But Betty did laugh and sneered, "Baby! Won't eat you! Look!" She held the worm up as she spoke and made a feint as if to throw it at Doris. Doris cringed in her seat and turned pale. Betty looked more disgusted and turned away, saying to herself, "She makes me tired. It's all put-on just to attract Allan's attention and make him think she is so sweet and nice." She turned her little pug nose up as high as it would go and went on examining her worm.

Betty, with her boyish love of Nature, could never understand a girls' fear of mice, worms, and snakes. She was a favorite with the boys who said she was "a good sport." She meditated about Doris for a few minutes, but the bell rang and the period ended.

Two weeks later the Seniors held their long anticipated "prom." The hall was gay with flowers and decorations. Well dressed boys and girls filled every corner. Doris, in a rose-colored creation, was everywhere at once and it was plain that she was the centre of interest. She seemed to smile, talk, dance and entertain all at once, with no effort. Partners crowded around for dances.

Over in an inconspicuous corner Betty watched Doris with envious eyes. She was ill at ease and uncomfortable in a tailored silk never meant for such an affair. She was alone and no one looked her way. She had no partner all the evening. As her eyes followed every movement that Doris made, she envied her. The boys who had so eagerly asked Betty to accompany them on their hikes and to take part in their sports, were now clustering around Doris, clamoring for dances. Once, as they whirled by, Doris caught Betty's glance and smiled and then Betty heard her say, "That poor child is all alone, Allan. You're going to ask her for the next dance. Now run along."

But Betty was too proud to stay and as she walked slowly home she compared the two situations ruefully and said to herself, "Doris showed herself to be the better sport. I'll help her with our specimens next time."

Bridgewater Normal School.

In the town of old Bridgewater,
Is a school of worthy fame;
She has sons and daughters loyal,
Who will e'er uphold her name.

The lessons are not easy,
You may wonder why you came,
But when you complete the Normal course,
You see what you have gained.

You're given a diploma of merit,
It will help you on through strife,
And many a time you'll be glad it's there,
To give you a "boost" through life.

The teachers and principal are noble;
They think of the pupils each day,
And try to arrange your subjects,
In the very, very best way.

They are also quick at observing,
They help you whenever they can,
And if ever a Normal you're choosing
Bridgewater's the best in the land.

A Professional Attitude.

Once in those solemn days in the far-away month of September,
When "green as grass" we came to Normal, how well I remember,
These were the first words we heard, tho' we'd scarcely had time to arrive;
"A professional attitude, Juniors, is the standard for which you should strive."
The Seniors, so wise and learned (?) have already gained it, I fear,
But we Juniors can say, "We should worry," and say it with never a tear.
A professional attitude, doubtless, is fine, but listen to me—
"Who wants one in 1920? For—whisper—it's leap year, you see!"

The Waiting Line.

SCENE

Outside Symphony Hall.

TIME

Saturday—between one and two o'clock.

CHARACTERS

Helen

Mildred

Clerk in Ticket Office

Others in waiting line.

Characters (except Clerk) in line outside hall.

Helen—"Hurrah! At last the line is moving!"

Mildred—"It's about time. We've been here at least three hours, ever since ten o'clock. I'm hungry again; isn't there anything to eat left in that box?"

Helen—"Only the piece of cake you said you didn't like. Want it?"

Mildred—"No! Come on, we're moving again."

Helen (whispering)—"Did you see that? A woman has just crowded in right behind us when that girl wasn't looking. Isn't she horrid?"

Mildred—"Yes, she is. But watch what you are doing yourself, or we'll get separated, and the first thing you know I'll be inside and you won't. We're rather near the end of the line, anyway. Next time we come we'll bring our breakfast, as the people ahead of us did, I suppose."

Helen—"How many have gone in now?"

Mildred—"To judge by the crowd between us and the ticket office, not very many have. But cheer up, we've moved a foot since the last time you asked me."

Helen—"I wonder if we'll be lucky enough to get in this time. Do you remember how we missed it last time and had to go to the movies to while away the time until the train went?"

Mildred—"That was quite a fall—from symphony to movies, wasn't it?"

Helen—"Go along! The line is getting short. We're only ten from the office."

Mildred—"Yes, but ten is a large number, considering all those who have already gone in."

Helen—"Only eight left!"

Mildred—"Seven!"

Helen—"Another gone. Six! "

Mildred—"Five!"

Helen—"Four!"

Mildred—"Don't get excited, Helen. Three!"

Helen—"Two! One! You're next."

Mildred (to man in ticket office). Two tickets, please!" (Receives tickets and she and Helen get ready to go in.)

Ticket Agent—"No more tickets! All sold out!"

A Yarn from Junior V.

---

"I saw old Stet('s)son, John('s)son, and Jack('s)son out Whalen the other day. There wasn't much doing and soon they began to argue. Then they got personal.

" 'You're as Sut (as a) Cliff(e)' says Jack('s)son, Roger.

" 'Ye poor Marble-head, ye can na even Reed.'

" 'Humph! but you're Welsh and Y'ates too much for y' disposition.'

" 'Is that so? I can Bout well and I Wood tangle ye up like a fly in spider's Webb.'

" '(F)letcher try it!'"

" 'And with that, Sar, 'e tor is sou Wester off and the last I saw of 'em they were fighting as if to the death, with their faces as White as paper.'"

The Beginning of a Perfect Day.

Crash! Bang! Bang! Crash!
 That's all we hear,
 So early in the morning;
 The radiator's getting heat,
 And so it gives us warning.

We doze again,
 For a short while,
 And then quiet in a moment,
 That awful rising bell we hear,
 Clang loud to every movement

Shall we arise?
 . What think you then?
 The room is cold, aye freezing;
 We hate the thoughts of getting up,
 To dress midst coughs and sneezing.

And so, of course,
 There's no way out,
 We'll wait till it gets warmer,
 And in the meantime sleep again,
 Ah! woe to a reformer!

A Visitor at Normal.

A girl came to visit a Senior tall,
 And they took her first to Woodward Hall.
 There she inspected the room of her friend,
 Where she stayed 'till her visit's end.

They took her to the Princess show,
 She saw the garden with beets in a row,
 Nor did she miss the "four legged tree,"
 Or any curiosity.

"Till" and "Normal" were displayed,
 To the visiting little maid.
 To the Dining Hall she then must go,
 To the Post Office, too, where the letters grow.

And when her stay had come to a close,
 And homeward she had turned her toes,
 She thought that she without a fear,
 Would come to Normal School next year.

History of Class A.

Let me see—Class B? Oh, yes, the class that gave the Circus; and wasn't it the very best affair we have had here for some time? Much spirit in that class—and the best of it is that they display it equally in all things. In the history or literature class, for example, teacher or students were never bored. There was always a tinge of excitement and enthusiasm wherever any member of Class B was found. A good reputation, wasn't it?

You notice we say "was." Because now we are Class A. The class that stands for Attitude—the right kind—Ability, Activity, Achievement, and a thousand other worth-while things.

When we became the leaders of the school, one thing happened which brought a little cloud to our sky. We were divided—we became A and A1 and A2. A1 was sent for outside training in September for twenty-six weeks. Poor A2 people must tread the weary road through Model. But let me tell you, as one who scuffed over its cobblestones, it wasn't half bad. In fact, we actually enjoyed it at times. At the same time we felt a little thrill of importance as we travelled with much haste through the corridors to our various duties. Music, as we taught it in Model, was our especial joy. We all agree that Miss Rand has the world record for "writing down crits" as we attempted to get a lesson "over the top."

All the same, we did envy our more fortunate classmates as they sallied forth each morning with lunch-box in hand and came home at night without the sign of a textbook.

After thirteen weeks, however, A<sup>2</sup> was allowed the same experience. Without doubt it was different from anything we had known before. Much mad dashing about for the seven-thirty train, wild scrambling for pink slips and ticket books! Then came the snow. We felt bad when for several mornings, it was nearly noon before we arrived at our schools. We tried our hardest to veil our smiles when we were forced to take a vacation for two weeks because of train service.

But now it is nearly over. After a few weeks more back in old Normal we shall go out for good. It gives us a mighty queer feeling. Reluctant, yet eager, we are all anxious to show what we can do and curious to learn what the future holds for us. Then, too, we are beginning to realize how true are the words of mothers and fathers when they have said, "Make the most of those days at school, for you'll find they are the happiest if you use them as you should."

We are planning great things for our last term; a class A social equal to our circus, a graduation which has never been equalled, and at last when we leave, to know that we have made history for Bridgewater Normal School and that the name of Class A, 1920, will bring back memories of service, devotion, happiness, and loyalty to our Alma Mater.

The best goods come in small packages.

LUNDEEN, JENNY, 29 No. Main St., North Easton.

So small and fair! You took my heart,
Stole it away, right at the start.

McLAUGHLIN, MARY, 52 Cambridge St., Lawrence. Sigma Theta Phi; Y. P. U.

A sunny nature wins lasting friendship everywhere.

McNEELAND, EDNA, 50 Park Ave., Bridgewater. Beta Gamma; T. C.

Here is one who for study finds
Heaps of time—so always shines.

MAHONEY, JULIA V., "Mahoney," 2 Wiley St., Fall River.

Good things aren't always in small packages.

MANCHESTER, ETHELYN, 19 Main St., Fairhaven.

Her thoughts were ever wandering to "home, sweet home."

MEURLING, PEURL, "Pete," 71 South St., Brockton.

"She has her own way of saying it."

MURPHY, LENORE, "Lee," 14 Fulton St., Campello. Sec. 1920.

'Tis the cordial "Hi" and the smile she wears,
That makes the sunshine every where.

- NORTON, IRENE I, 11 Annis Court, Brockton. Class Essayist.
     A diligent young lady, as busy as a bee—
     For dancing and "cutting," no equal has she.
- O'BRIEN, CATHERINE, 22 Blossom Rd., Fall River.
     School all day—study all night—
     Is it any wonder that she is bright?
- PERKINS, HELEN, 30 Vaughn Ave., Whitman.
     A quiet and thoughtful maiden.
- PORTER, RUTH H., 92 Washington St., North Easton.
- REILLY, ROSE ANNA, 32 Annis Court, Brockton. Class Prophet.
     Of all the problems we have solved
     There is one that still remains—
     Could our class ever have existed
     Without the girl here named?
- RELIHAN, THERESA, "Tess," Hartford Avenue, Wilder, Vt. Sec.-Treas. Glee Club 1920; French Club; Tennis Club; Y. P. U.; Orchestra.
     Her cheery good nature to each class she brings,
     And when in Glee Club, Oh! How she can sing!
- ROBBINS, EDITH, "Ede," 71 Market St., Campello. Alpha Gamma Phi; French Club; Tennis Club; Y. P. U.
     She has friends—oh, yes, a "pile,"—
     And for all she has a smile.
- THOMAS, HELEN, "Tommy," 5 Mt. Vernon Ave., Melrose. Omega Iota Phi; President of Class 1918-19-20; Tennis Club; Y. P. U.; Delegate War Work Convention.

Class History.

Prize Poem.

In the fall of nineteen-eighteen,
In September, nineteen-eighteen
Came a new class to Bridgewater,
Full of life and joy of living,
Full of fun and smiles and laughter,
Ready to prepare for teaching.

Dark behind them rose the gymnasium,
Rose the ivy-walled gymnasium,
Where there passed some awful moments,
Full of fear and far from happy.

Came then to us all the Seniors,
Told us tales of work before us,
Tales that were made up to scare us.
But we did not heed their warnings,
Steadily refused to listen,
Went our way as best we saw it,
Made our mark as willing Juniors.

Oh, the long and weary lessons,
Oh, the hard and tiresome lessons,
New they were and far from easy,
But we studied them and learned them.
Reading, history and psychology,
Drawing, chemistry, and biology,
Learned we names of beasts and fishes,
Learned we names of rocks and tissues,
'Till our brains were set a'whirling.

But we had our pleasures also,
Had our socials and our dances,
Where we learned to know each other,
Learned to play and laugh together.
Thus we spent our year as Juniors,
Happy, noisy, laughing Juniors.

In the fall of nineteen-nineteen,
Came we back then to Bridgewater,
Came no longer as when Juniors,
Came as real and earnest Seniors.
Some of us began our training,
Straightway we began our training,
And indeed, we felt like teachers.
Others of us took our studies,
Went to work again with new zeal.

But the greatest of our efforts,
Dreaded most of all the efforts,
Lay before us—known as "Model."
Entered we into those portals,
With great fear and trepidation;
Found we did not lose our voices,
That our teachers were not ogres,
Letrned to like to teach the children.
But we heaved a sigh of gladness
When our six weeks there were over;
Of our marks we'll make no mention.

After that, our lessons claimed us,
Yes indeed, our lessons claimed us,
History of education,
Lit., and gym., and picture study,
Geography and how to teach it.

Just a word about our playtime,
About our gay and happy playtime,
Social parties, and big sleigh rides,
Teas and spreads and such-like gay times.

Promenade in the gymnasium,
Big event of all the season,
Lovely gowns, a really man-dance.
Prettier than all former parties.

Soon will come our graduation,
Long awaited graduation,
Time of joy and time of sorrow,
Time of smiles and time of sadness,
When we needs must leave our classmates,
Friends through all our work and play-time;
When our thoughts turn to our teaching,
To the task that lies before us,
To the years that lie before us;
When we'll need all the good counsel,
Need the many words of wisdom,
That have come to us at Normal.
But the class of nineteen-twenty
Will not shirk what seems their duty,
Will do credit to their teachers,
Credit to their Alma Mater.

—MARY E. NOTTINGHAM.

Class Roll.

Senior I.

AMES, ANNA, "Ann", 11 Mechanic St., North Easton, Mass.

A pleasing blond is she, and fair
Of disposition loving and rare,
An excellent class-mate, too, we know
Anna will make good wherever she goes.

BAILEY, ALICE KATHERINE, "Al," 153 Hunter St., Fall River, Mass. Sigma
Theta Phi; Tennis Club; Y. P. U.

Smiling, pleasing and witty is "Al,"
A true friend and a good old pal.

BERGERON, HORTENSE D., "Pat," 1449 North Main St., Fall River, Mass.
Tau Beta Gamma; Tennis Club; Y. P. U..

Happy am I, from care I'm free;
Why isn't everyone contented like me.

BROWN, VIVIAN, 1 Augusta Ave., Brockton, Mass. Chairman of Publicity Committee.

To this fair lass of Senior One
Of bright and loving nature,
A vote of thanks we do extend
For humor in god measure.

BURGESS, MADELINE PAULDING, "Snoozie," 111 Centre St., Middleboro, Mass. Sigma Theta Phi; Hockey; Basketball.

Her smile is charming; her face is sweet;
She is the nicest girl one could meet.
Her dancing we all do like
For Madeline likes to dance from morn 'til night.

CALNAN, MAE, 75 Forest St., Brockton, Mass.

If you should search this world of ours
You could not find a sweeter flower
Than our dear old classmate, Mae,
She is always winsome, witty and gay.

CARNEY, ALICE CELIA, "Al," 56 First St., Taunton, Mass. Publicity Committee.

Good natured, kind and loving is "Al,"
Whose good work has saved many a pal.
We all unite to wish her well,
For success, the results of her work do tell.

CONNOR, MARY ELEANOR, "Dadie," 53 Borden St., New Bedford, Mass. Tau Beta Gamma; Tennis Club; Y. P. U.; French Club.

Mary, a girl with eyes of blue,
Loved by all classmates whom she knew.

CROWELL, CATHERINE, "Kay," 73 Steves St., Taunton, Mass. Glee Club; Omega Iota Phi; Representative of Student Government; Class Treasurer; Tennis Club; Y. P. U.

In early June with cheeks abloom
We met our "K" but none too soon.
Charming, neat and full of fun,
We are glad that she joined Senior One.

CROWLEY, HELEN LEONARD, Len, 252 Chestnut St., New Bedford, Mass. You have all heard of the famous Helen of Troy.
We too have a Helen who has brought us much joy.
Dark hair, blue eyes and a graceful figure does she possess,
This is our Helen, the girl who always is well-dressed.

COLLINS, MARY CATHERINE, Cassie, 16 North Liberty St., Nantucket, Mass. Hockey; Basketball.

Always happy, always lucky,
We've always admired our best sport, Cassie.

DAKER, GERTRUDE LOUISE, "Gert," 27 East St., North Attleboro, Mass. Representative Student Government; French Club; Publicity Committee; Y. P. U.

Well, here is Gert, whom we must say
Is one of the star pupils of today;
Ever ready with tongue and hand,
Her head has many a lesson planned.

DELAHANTY, JULIETTA C., "Julie," 49 Cross St., Fall River, Mass. Normal Offering Board; Chairman Publicity Committee; Tennis Club.

With virtues kind and loving,
And standards good and high,
We all have loved our "Julie"
And will until we die."

DINEEN, CATHERINE, "Cath," 6 Williams St., North Easton, Mass.

Tho with us but a year,
Catherine has proved herself a dear,
Tho small in stature, you will find
This lass has quite a good-sized mind.

DONAHUE, REBECCA LOUISE, "Becky," 7 Chestnut St., Brockton, Mass. Y. P. U.; Basketball; Hockey.

Becky leads in everything,
Joy to our class she always brings.
She is our bright and shining star
From Holyoke so far.

DOWNEY, MARY AGNES, 290 Pleasant St., New Bedford, Mass. Senior Social Committee; Y. P. U.

Music hath charms to soothe the savage breast,
But the heart of this maiden has yet to prove the test.

FLYNN, MARY HELEN CHRISTINA, "Flynnie," 277 Linden St., Fall River, Mass. Glee Club, Y. P. U.

This chubby lass of Senior One,
Is full of life and full of fun.
A fluent tongue, a wondrous smile,
Has made her presence most worth-while.

FESSENDEN, DOROTHY MARSHALL, "Dot," Plymouth St., Middleboro, Mass.

To Dot, a studious unassuming maid
A tribute of praise must be paid,
For work well done and marks well earned,
We give her credit for lessons learned.

FURGIUELE, ROSE MARIE, "Fiji," 1913 Bedford St., Fall River, Mass. Dramatic Club; Class Prophetess; Publicity Committee; Normal Offering Board; Tennis Club.

Good was Rose in Dramatics,
Music and the rest,
But better still was she, at
Building castles in the West.

FINNELL, CATHERINE LOUISE, Kay, Cath, 311 Bowditch St., New Bedford, Mass. Sigma Theta Phi; Tennis Club.

If you should pass
The baby of our class,
I'm sure you would declare
This is a lass dainty and fair.

FRAWLEY, MARY GRACE, "Tom," 29 Stafford St., Plymouth, Mass. Y. P. U.

Tho Mary is a common name
This lass is quite uncommon.
Her style you see is all her own,
Her work this characteristic too, has shown.

GREELEY, MARY P., 2531 Main St., Fall River, Mass.

This demure and quiet lass
Has helped raise the standards of our class.
Her words, tho few, we must admit
Reveal a goodly bit of wit.

GOULD, MARGUERITE ELIZABETH, 4321 North Main St., Fall River, Mass. Y. P. U.; Basketball.

Small in size, we must admit,
And studious as well,
We also know our Marguerite
To be both bright and sweet.

Senior II.

MARY ELEANOR GIFFORD (Giffy), Dartmouth. Dramatic Club.

"True to her work, her word, and her friends."

FRANCES CONNELLY GOGGIN (Frankie), 484 Linden St., Fall River. Sec.-retary and Treasurer of Junior Class (III. year course); Tennis Club.

So gentle in form and fair of face."

IDA HANSON, 2 Myrtle St., Middleboro.

"She does all her work with a zeal that is true
Of all the maidens in old Senior II."

RUTH HARNEY, 158 Thompson St., New Bedford. Y. P. U.; Tennis Club.

"Tho' small in stature and quiet in mien,
We, her classmates, have often seen
That hidden beneath all this there lies
Humor and wit that never dies."

DORIS MERLE HAYES, 105 Howard St., Rockland.

Dramatic Club; Y. P. U.

That when call d on, and in doubt, she rolls to the skies."

"She's short and she's plump with such pretty eyes,

MARGARET J. HAYES (Peg), Rockland.

"Then after Miss D. comes Miss Margaret Hayes, Who's noted afar for her mischievous ways."

HELEN DOANE HIGGINS (Kid), 16 Cambridge Terrace, Cambridge. Omega Iota Phi; Class President '19-'20; Executive Committee Woodward Hall Association 1919; Glee Club; Tennis Club; Y. P. U.

"As sweet as the sweetest peach,
She gives to all and to each
Her best, which is true and fine."

CATHERINE C. KELEHER, 12 Summer St., Abington.

"On with the dance," says Catherine K.,
And let me dance the livelong day."

MARIAN KEELEY, 943 Summer St., Fall River Glee Club, Music Committee of Y. P. U.; Tennis Club.

"Oh what is so rare or so hard to find,
In all this world of toil and grind,
As the heart that I know is made of gold
Which way down deep our Marion holds."

ANNE ELIZABETH KERRIGAN, 874 Rockland Ave., New Bedford, Mass. Tau Beta Gamma; Religious Committee of Y. P. U.

"With lessons she took much pain,
But before class was a 'Calamity Jane.'
'I know I'll forget it,' she'd say,
But in class would recite it like play."

CHARLOTTE KILEY, (Lottie), Fall River.

Charlotte Kiley's a professional lass,
Who reprimands us during History Class.

GEORGINA LOUISE LEATHER, 14 Morse Ave, Groton, Conn. Tennis Club; Y. P. U.

"As clever a maid as you could meet,
Our Georgie's smile cannot be beat."

LILLIAN LIBERTY, 140 Belmont St., Brockton.

"Lil Liberty, an ideal chum,
Never forgot her own freedom.
Of all the troubled Normal lasses,
Lillian cut the most classes."

MARGARET McCARTHY, (Reggie), 56 Fuller St., Brockton. Sigma Theta Phi; Tennis Club.

Margaret is, we all agree,
A pretty, bashful maiden
With blushing cheeks that always greet
Her schoolmates with a smile.

MARY McCARTHY, 190 South Franklin St., Holbrook.

Our Mary is a wee cute Miss,
Whom everybody knows.
Her presence seems to fill our class
With the fragrance of a rose.

LILLIAN McDONALD (Mac), 1289 Dwight St., Holyoke. Lambda Phi; Tennis Club; Associate Editor Normal Offering 1919-20; Student Government Association; Representative Board; Y. P. U.

A good scout and a perfect young lady.

CATHERINE C McKEON (Kic), 152 Broadway Taunton. Tau Beta Gamma.
For tickling the worries she can't be beat,
She's pretty and witty and dainty and sweet,
A lass Senior II. is proud of.

ANNA MEEHAN, 344 Purchase St., New Bedford, Y. P. U.

This shy and rather bashful Miss
With open hand and heart,
Is just a dear old pal of ours
And has been from the start.

UNA MONAGHAN, 53 Beacon Park, Brockton.

As bright as a dollar, as neat as a pin,
You could never miss Una, whene'er she came in;
For her lessons were ready, and she always would share
Her knowledge with those who wouldn't prepare.

DOROTHY U. MURPHY, 174 Greenwood St., Rockland.

Of all the "titian haired" ladies
That poets "rave" about,
Our Dorothy's the nicest
Without the slightest doubt.

Senior III.

GLADYS B. MILLER (Glad), 26 Chester St., Taunton. Y. P. U.; Omega Iota Phi; Tennis Club; Chairman of Entertainment Committee.

Saddest in her sadness,
Maddest in her madness,
Isn't in it with her gladness
When she's glad, eh, Glad!

MARY A. MORIARTY, 67 West St., Abington.

"But come what will, I've sworn it still I'll never be melancholy, O."

HELENA C. MURPHY, 172 Forest Ave., Brockton. Sigma Theta Phi; Tennis Club.

"Be blest with health, and peace, and sweet content."

ESTHER M. MURRAY, (Es), 526 Cottage St., New Bedford. Y. P. U.; Tennis Club; Junior Social Committee; Associate Editor of Normal Offering 1919.

"Prudent, cautious self-control
Is wisdom's root."

MARIE MITRANO (Rea), Williams St., North Easton. President of French Club; Member of Women's Club of Bridgewater.

"Gather gear by every mile

HELEN L. NEWTON, (Newt), 106 Main St., Fairhaven. Y. P. U.; Beta Gamma.

"May Prudence, Fortitude, and Truth, Erect your brow undaunting!"

EDITH NICOLL (Ede), 134 Independence Ave., Quincy. Glee Club.

"To sum up all, be merry, I advise;
And as we're merry, may me still be wise."

FLORENCE M. NOONAN, (Flo), 798 Second St., Fall River. Tau Beta Gamma; Tennis Club.

"Wistful blue eyes, but such a cheerful smile."

CATHERINE L. O'CONNELL (K), South St., East Taunton.

"Her eyes are full of sunshine
And her hair is full of curls,
She is ever scattering sunshine
Throughout the gloomy world."

EVELYN A. OLDING, (Eve) Treasurer of Y. P. U.; Tennis Club; Member of New Student Committee.

"Sometimes grave and sometimes gay,
But we like her anyway."

FANNIE M. ORTOLANE (Tiny), 8 Cherry St., Plymouth. Y. P. U.; Tennis Club; Basketball; Hockey.

"They say 'good things come in small packages,'
But of Fannie, in Senior 3, most tall,
I'd say she is an exception,

REBA I. OSGOOD, (Rebe), 34 Buckingham Rd., Wollaston. Y. P. U.; T. C.; Library Club; Junior Social Committee.

If a task is once begun,

FLORENCE M. PARKINS, (Flo), 1049 County St., New Bedford. New Student Committee; Dramatic Club; Y. P. U.; Senior Social Committee.

MYRTLE PERKINS, (Myrt), North Carver.

WILLA PERKINS, 10 Prospect Ave., Chelsea. Omega Iota Phi; Y. P. U.

Never was a girl so busy,
Yet with so much time for him.

CHARLOTTE M. PERRIER, (Charl), 12 Washington St., Plymouth. Y. P. U.; Library Club; Dramatic Club; T. C.; Tennis Club; Associate Editor of Normal Offering Board 1920; Hockey; Class Prophet; Basketball; Member of War Fund Committee 1918-1919.

"On her face is a smile
Which will help her to hold
All the friends she has made,
With her heart of pure gold."

HELEN F. PERRIER, (Stude Gov.), 12 Washington St., Plymouth. Y. P. U.; Executive Committee of Student Government 1919-20; Library Club; Dramatic Club; T. C.; Glee Club 1919; Tennis Club; Hockey; Basketball.

"True to her word, her work, and her friends."

ALICE PETERS, (Al) (Pete), 172 Merrimac St., New Bedford. Y. P. U.; New Student Committee; Publicity Committee.

"Smiling, cheerful and true,

IRENE W. POWERS, 69 Washington St., Abington.

"They say 'Still waters run deep,'

DORIS R. PRICE, (Dot), 80 Center St., Fairhaven. Omega Iota Phi.

"Here's to attractive Doris,
Who is soon to wed,
Wherever she may go
May she accept our wishes well said."

AMY F. REGAN, 667 Cherry St., Fall River. Y. P. U.; Social Committee 1919-20; Tennis Club.

IRENE L. REYNOLDS, 510 Bradford Ave., Fall River. Y. P. U.; Sigma Theta Phi.

"We all know her, we all like her,
More than that we need not say."

MILDRED A. REYNOLDS, (Mil), 510 Bradford Ave., Fall River. Y. P. U.; Sigma Theta Phi; Dramatic Club.

"She is in for all sorts of fun,
From austere wit to trifling pun."

GERTRUDE L. ROBBINS (Gert) (Raw Beans), North Carver.

"She loves her school, she loves her work—
But a week-end home she never would shirk"

BLANCHE A. ROGERS, Main St., Siasconset. Y. P. U.

Senior IV.

CHAGNON, CELILIA G., 10 Bridge St., Holyoke.

Quiet and unassuming—but "still waters run deep," as does
Celilia's subtle humor.

PITCHER, EVELYN F., 18 Tudor St., Chelsea. Lambda Phi, Tennis Club, Glee Club, Y. P. U.

"On with the dance, let joy be unconfined."

POLLARD, MARION A., 253 So. Union St., Burlington, Vt. Lambda Phi, Tennis Club, Glee Club, Y. P. U.

"The girl with a good memory is not nearly so lovable as the good forgetter."
Our "Polly" is as sunshiny as her Titian hair.

SAMPSON, ESTHER L. (Sammie), 11 Washington St., Plymouth. Lambda Phi; Y. P. U.; Glee Club.

SHANNON, EVA C., 43 Somerset Road, Lexington.

SHULMAN, CELIA, 64 Bowers St., Fall River. Dramatic Club; Y. P. U.

A lady of many excellent qualities.

SMITH, ROSE A., 15 Chauncy St., East Dedham. Lambda Phi; Glee Club; Y. P. U.

"Her sweet and guileless smile

STANTON, LUCY M., 1198 North Main St., Fall River. Glee Club; Y. P. U.

Oh, how she can sing!

STEARNS, HELEN, 91 Main St., St. Johnsbury, Vt.

A maiden modest and yet self possessed.

STONE, MABEL E., 141 Bonney St., New Bedford. Omega Iota Phi; Glee Club; Y. P. U.

"I don't care—I had a good time."

STRANGE, HAZEL, 34 Summer St., Taunton.

SULLIVAN, ADELAIDE E., 137 Chancery St., New Bedford. Tau Beta Gamma; Glee Club; Student Gov't.

SULLIVAN, CHRISTINA.

Wise, witty and worthy.

STUART, FLORENCE. Student Gov't.; Y. P. U.

She that was ever fair and never proud

Had tongue at will and yet was never loud.

TABER, GERTRUDE, 299 Washington St., Canton.

"Successful in everything she attempts."

TURNER, GRACE E., 682 Cottage St., New Bedford. Omega Iota Phi; Glee Club; Y. P. U.

VADABONCOEUR, PRISCILLA C., 21 Willey St., Haverhill. Dramatic Club; Y. P. U.

"Follow me and thou shalt not lack amusement."

WADE, FREDERICA W. (Freddie), Elm St., Scituate Center. Glee Club; Y. P. U.

The mildest manners and the gentlest heart.

WATERMAN, GRACE D., Driftway Road, Scituate. Y. P. U.

"Our character is our will for what we will—we are."

WHITMORE, RUTH B., 19 Lilley Ave., Campello. Alpha Gamma Phi; Y. P. U.

"Blue eyes! Golden hair,

WHITTAKER, MABELLE F., 254 Chestnut St., New Bedford.

Clever as they make 'em. An artist to the finger-tips.

WILBAR, WINIFRED I., 82 Pearl St., Brockton.

"Serene—I fold my hands and wait."

MILES, BARBARA (Babs).

"In intelligence she reigns supreme."

Senior V.

DORIS BARRITT ("Dot" "Dottie"), Slocum Road, North Dartmouth, Mass.
Omega Iota Phi; Y. P. U.; Senior Social Committee.

"Dot is the littlest in her class,
A bonny, lively, friendly lass,
Cheerful, thoughtful, wise and sweet,
Sure to make friends of all she'll meet."

NELLIE D. BEDARD, 75 Peckham St., New Bedford. Y. P. U.

"Jolly, good-natured and sweet,
She's a girl you'd love to meet."

NELLIE BLUNT, 452 Warren Ave., Brockton. Sigma Theta Phi; Tennis Club.

"All agree she's a demure little lass,
And is liked by everyone in the class."

RUTH M. BRYANT ("Rufus" "Toots"), 56 Everett St., Middleboro, Mass.

"Ever ready a helping hand to lend,
You'll find her a true and faithful friend."

ETHEL CATHERINE BUCKLEY, 10 East Broadway, Taunton.

"With a joke and a laugh, ever ready for fun,

MARGARET ELIZABETH COLEMAN ("Gret"), 89 Hathaway St., Fall River.
Tennis Club.

"The jolliest girl I've ever seen yet,
And a 'good old pal' is our classmate 'Gret'."

MARGARET FRANCES COLLINS, South Main St., North Brookfield, Mass.
Glee Club; Y. P. U.; Tennis Club.

"As clever a girl as one could meet,
Is Margaret, so witty and so sweet."

MERRIEL DAMON, R. F. D. Cohasset, Mass. Beta Gamma; Glee Club.

"She is merry to talk with,
Cheery to walk with

JENNIE F. DRISCOLL ("Jen"), 47 East Walnut St., Taunton, Mass.

"She's just as good as she is sweet,
And conscientious—yes, indeed."

FRANCES DJERF ("Jerfie"), 14 Nelson St., Quincy, Mass.

"It's hard to explain our Frances D.,
She's just as happy as she can be,
She tries to do her best each day,
And always succeeds, I'm glad to say."

ESTHER GIBSON ("Bunny"), 18 Bryant Place, Quincy, Mass., Lambda Phi;
Y. P. U.; Glee Club; Tennis Club; Cercle Francais; Basketball; Hockey; Ticket Committee; Junior Social.

"Good-natured and sunny,
How we all love our 'Bunny'!"

GERTRUDE HORNBY ("Tony, Red, Eve, Gert"), 273 Barnaby St., Fall River.
Beta Gamma; Glee Club.

Gertrude is sunny, and smiling all day;
When it comes to studies, we give her 'right of way'."

RUTH MARJORIE IVERS ("Rufus"), 186 Oliver St., Fall River. Y. P. U.; Tennis Club; Class Secretary '19; Class Prophetess; Junior Social Committee; Basketball; Hockey.

"Bright as the brightest,
Merry as the merriest,
Athletic, sweet, and true."

MARY ELIZABETH KIRKTON ("May"), Wrentham, Mass., Box 210. Glee Club; Y. P. U.; Student Government; New Student Committee; Hospitality Committee.

"Her voice was ever gentle, soft and low;
An excellent thing in woman."

RUTH PATRICIA McARDLE ("Rufus"), 194 Diman St., Fall River, Mass.
Secretary of Tennis Club; Tau Beta Gamma; Y. P. U.; Senior Social Committee.

MARGARET M. MURPHY ("Peg," "Gret"), 30 John St., Fall River, Mass. Y. P. U.; Bal.

"Margaret is quiet, but a 'Johnny-on-the-spot';

When it comes to studies, we've found she can't be caught."

JOSEPHINE IVERA MacCARTHY ("Vera," "V"), 26 Fairfield Ave., Holyoke, Mass. Tau Beta Gamma; Glee Club; Y. P. U.; Tennis Club; Art Editor of Normal Offering; Publicity Committee.

"She is one greatly skilled in art,

And blessed with a loving heart."

MARY ELIZABETH NOTTINGHAM ("Mary Not"), Swansea, Mass. Y. P. U.; Cercle Francais; Normal Offering Board; Class Historian; Publicity Committee.

"She's as jolly a girl as you could meet,

And as for cleverness—she can't be beat."

TERESA B. QUIGLEY ("Quig"), 203½ Tinkham St., New Bedford. Tennis Club; Junior Social Committee; Publicity Committee.

"Teresa is a good sport,

She's always laughing, too;

When Teresa Quigley's near you,

You never can be blue."

VERONICA M. REGAN ("Smiles"), 14 Adams St., Taunton. Junior Social Committee; Student Government.

"You may travel and travel for many a mile,

But you'd never find anything to surpass her smile."

NELLIE LOUISE SHAW ("Nell's Louise"), 59 Everett St., Middleboro. Omega Iota Phi.

"Smiles or labor she never spared,

MARY J. C. SKEHAN ("Mazie"), 268 Buffington St., Fall River. Glee Club.

"Mary always has a smile,

You know the reason why,

And moreover, she always will try."

Whatever she does is always worth while,

MILDRED ANNA SOULE, Cedar St., Middleboro.

"Oh, Mildred Soule has won each soul,

In dear old Senior Five,

I think I'm right in saying,

There's no nicer girl alive."

ELIZABETH PRUDENCE SUMNER ("Bessie"), 508 Center St., Fall River. Tennis Club; Y. P. U.; New Student Committee.

"To dramatize most any part,

Our Bessie's always asked to,

Because she acts with all her heart,

And we're sorry when she's through."

Class History.

In September, 1918, a group of merry, carefree girls and sh! don't say a word, three intellectual boys came to the busy realm of Bridgewater Normal School. Little did these people realize the horrors which were before them. With light hearts they entered "the old curiosity shop," or in other words, the arithmetic room, and there they endeavored to make sensible use of the china-ware, measuring cups, blocks of wood, etc., which were placed before them, while Mr. Jackson played the part of an amused audience.

From that class they found their way to the biology room, where they spent many busy hours trying to learn that lobsters are not fish and that birds are minus teeth.

Later on in the year this happy class was introduced to the joys of music and many made their debuts as wonderful singers.

In the gymnasium, it is needless to say, we starred, because, as we belonged to the three year class, a great deal was expected of us.

Then came reading to which we had looked forward for some time, and there we told stories, astounding to both young and old.

But all this took place when we were merely insignificant Juniors, and now we are well embarked on our second year. As Class B we do not seem to be very much appreciated, but then, there has to be some class to "take all the knocks."

At the end of the first term we came very near losing one of the three persons who brought fame to Class B, but Mr. Clish finally decided to remain with us because he considered his presence necessary to our welfare.

Our time so far this year has been taken up with geography and history, which we all enjoy when there isn't a teaching lesson, literature, in which class we endeavor to be courageous like Ivanhoe or dignified like Caesar; French, in speaking which some of the members of the class struggle fervently with those terrible phonetics, and last, but by no means least, drawing. This last mentioned subject needs special emphasis, so I will pause a moment to tell about some of our new projects. In the first place, we had design, which wasn't so bad. Then came the School Magazine dummy, which was only a little worse, and then the buildings of those cozy, little bungalows which Class B so enjoyed (?).

Of course, if we had hopes of ever living in an ideal bungalow we would register much more interest in the one we are now building, but alas, schoolteachers will be schoolteachers.

Thus, Class B has progressed to date, and since there is an end to all things, there must be an end to this lengthy chapter in the history of Class B. We now can have the pleasure of looking forward to practice teaching, and the adventures of being real Seniors.

Senior Four.

Senior 4 is witty;
Senior 4 is bright;
When Senior 4 does things,
They are exactly right.

Senior 4 can study;
Senior 4 can grind;
But when it comes to dreadful "plugs",
Not many will you find.

X-ray!

Although there's only six of us
To be in K. P. II.,
We'll make our history a poem
As other K. P.'s do.

When first we entered Normal School
We found to our dismay,
That though the class was very small
Divided we must stay.

We started out nine strong at first,
But by our second year
We found that only six of us
At roll call did appear.

Our Junior days were happy ones
(And so are K. P. II.)
We hoed, and dug, and grafted trees
Which to us all was new.

In Reading class we dramatized
Our stories long and short;
And learned in systems one by one
How Reading should be taught.

Our Drawing course was all complete
When three books had been don;
Those action "figures" tickled us,
They caused us so much fun.

We tried our skill in modeling
A circus of great fame;
Upon the table it was spread,
While all the children came.

In Music, songs we learned to sing,
And many types beside;
'Twas then we wrote some lesson plans,
The first we ever tried.

But let us turn to K. P. II.,
And leave our Junior days.
Why linger on the past gone by,
And look at former ways?

'Twas not until our second year,
Our dear Miss Wells we knew,
The teacher who so lovingly
Advised us what to do.

Our first term was enjoyable
With several periods free.
Our program was a problem
Which puzzled you and me.

We took some Gym all by ourselves,
And some with Senior V.,
Geography with Senior III.
I wonder how we thrive?

In Mr. Kelly's woodwork class
We sawed, and planed, and split,
Until we made a soft wood chair,
A little child to fit.

Then Model School did claim us next
With all its hopes and fears;
And many points we tried to learn,
To help us through the years.

So now we strive day after day
To gain our goal at last;
Oh, what a pleasure it will be
Recalling what has past.

M. E. W.

“Juniors we are,
From near and far.”

On September 10, 1919, 112 meek little Juniors arrived at Bridgewater Normal School.

Had it not been for the New Student Committee, many of us Juniors would not have been able to find our way to the school. The first few days would have been a great puzzle had not the kind Seniors helped us to make out our programs and direct us to our various rooms.

In due time, the officers of the class were elected and the Junior Social in the form of a Valentine's Party was given.

What fun we had in reading class when we listened to another girl trying to tell and dramatize a story, but oh! how different we felt when we had to come before the class and tell our own stories.

In psychology class we tried to discover why some children learn more quickly than others and why some do not learn at all.

In nature study we found out a great many things about mosses, fungi, etc., and other things that you cannot even see.

In studying physiography, we learned to name the contents of our “box of rocks,” both backwards and forwards.

Shall we ever forget the day when we first had pruning and grafting and when so many of us went to the next class with thumbs all tied up with white bandages.

Our Junior year is now drawing to a close and we look forward with great hope and expectation to our Senior year.

MARY E. CONWAY, Historian.

The Student Government Association seeks to represent and further the best interests of the entire student body; to secure co-operation between the divers student activities and to promote a feeling of responsibility, self-control, and loyalty in the student body. Every student, upon entering the school, becomes a member of the association. The work of the association is divided into three lines of activity, namely: The Representative Board, The Social Activities Committee, and The Young People's Union.

The Representative Board has as its fundamental duty the oversight of student conduct outside the classroom in order to help the student body to live up to high standards and ideals of which Bridgewater has always been proud. This board consists of one representative from the dormitory students of each class, together with a representative from both the Junior and Senior train students. These representatives together with the officers of the association form the Representative Board. The Dean and a member of the Faculty act in an advisory capacity to this board.

The President and Vice-President are chosen in February from the students in the second year of the three-year courses. The Representative Board nominates five students for each office and the selection is made by the Principal and Dean on the basis of personality, scholarship, and leadership. From February to June of their second year, they are members of the Representative Board, and from September to June of their Senior year, they hold office.

The Secretary and Treasurer are chosen in September from the Student Body by the Representative Board and hold office from September to June.

Regular meetings of the Representative Board are held every Monday evening for the purpose of bringing before the Board matters of conduct which need adjustment; any complaints or suggestions from the Student Body; the appointment of light proctors for the following week; and, once a month, the choosing of regular monthly proctors.

The Social Activities Committee.

Lois Litchfield—President.

Adelaide Huard—Secretary.

Charles Keelan—Treasurer.

The Social Activities Committee is a representative group of students whose principal duty is to initiate and direct the social life of the school. This committee was organized by the Student Government Association in September, 1919, and has been guided in its work by the Faculty Council.

It was soon found that to make any headway along social lines there must be some financial backing. Therefore a tag day was held and all purchasers of tags were admitted to a Hallowe'en Party given on October 31, 1919, in the gymnasium.

From this tag day a fund of nearly eighty dollars was established and it appeared to be a good beginning. This was a start so that all future socials were planned and given by the various classes. The idea was to arrange one social a month, but in some cases the parties were postponed and several were held on consecutive Fridays. It is hoped that this fact will not be an argument for fewer parties next year, for the elimination of them would be detrimental to the social life of the school.

A series of Hospitality Teas was held, one every two weeks, in Normal Reception room. A need for greater social intercourse among the students was felt and it seemed as if these teas would serve the two-fold purpose of promoting this relationship and at the same time give the girls some social training.

This has been the first year of the committee as an organized body. On the whole it has been a successful venture. It is the responsibility of those who are to return next year to keep it living, growing, and helpful, both for the school and for the students. Let the friendly, democratic attitude, which must ever be the basis of social success, be the spirit which will prevail.

The Young People's Union this year was organized under a new constitution, incorporated with the Student Government Association. Under this new constitution there are to be no dues, but one-fourth of the student activity fund is to be devoted to the use of the Young People's Union. The New Student Committee is to be called the Hospitality Committee, and its members will remain active throughout the year. There are to be two teacher advisors, Mrs. Riddell and Miss Davis, who will assist Miss Moffitt in her work. These facts comprise the main changes in the constitution.

At the Sunday evening meetings this year we have had many good speakers and a large attendance. Among the special attractions was a very inspiring talk given by Deaconess Goodwin. We are greatly indebted to the Reverend Mr. Thompson and to Miss Moffitt for bringing her to us. On Sunday, March 24th, Mrs. Edith Gould Currier, a former graduate of this school, gave an interesting stereopticon lecture on Burma, India, where she has spent several years. The members of the various churches in town were invited and a goodly number accepted the invitation.

On the whole, the Young People's Union has had a very successful year, and it thanks all the members of the school for their hearty support.

Accompanist,	Miss Ethel Boyden
President,	Miriam Ford
Librarian,	Esther Sampson
Secretary-Treasurer,	Teresa Relihan

The year 1919-1920 has been marked by a very active and successful career for the Normal Glee Club.

Under the direction of Miss Rand, assisted by Miss Boyden as accompanist, with the co-operation of the sixty-four members, the Club has already presented some interesting programs, first furnishing delightful music for the Christmas dinner.

The most important feature of the year was the concert given Friday evening, April 23, 1920. The Club was assisted by Miss Edith Woodman, soprano, and Miss Ethel Fielding, accompanist. The concert was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone and proved a great success.

The Glee Club is now looking forward to participating in the Baccalaureate and Graduation Exercises.

The members of 1920 take pleasure in extending to the future members, their best wishes for success in the coming year.

The year 1918-1919 ended with great success for the Dramatic Club when it presented "Much Ado About Nothing." A great deal of the club's success was due to the untiring efforts of Miss Moffitt.

The work for 1919-1920 was begun with two members of the previous year and fourteen new members. The first appearance of the club was on Nov. 21, 1919, when two plays, "Spreading the News," and "The Man Who Married the Dumb Wife" were given. This was a great success.

On May 14, 1920, the club presented "The Comedy of Errors" and it was considered by all one of the best performances ever given by the club.

DRAMATIC CLUB

This school year, a new organization has been formed, namely, the French Club. It was organized mainly through the efforts of our new French teacher, Miss Bradford, who has been a wonderful inspiration.

Not only those who were members of the French Classes were allowed to join, but also any member of the school who was interested in French. The fifty-seven members of the French Club with their "Directrice," Miss Bradford, are all working to further the interest in French in the school, to obtain individual help in learning French habits and customs, and to acquire a better knowledge of French, with the one idea of being able to use it. The greatest aim of the Club, however, is to encourage the friendly relations between France and America. Very interesting meetings have been held at which it is necessary to remember that "Ici on parle francais." The Club has already accomplished good work. At Thanksgiving time, the members filled a large basket with all kinds of eatables and gave it to a poor French family in Bridgewater. Also, in response to an appeal in the Literary Digest for scrap books for the children in the devastated regions of France, a large number of pictures and magazines were contributed to the French Club by all the school, and these were sent to France. Thus far, our Club has been a great success, and we are sure that it will continue as such.

MARY BROUGHTON.

President,

Isabella W. Lees

Secretary-Treasurer,

Doris M. Wordell

The Library Club has passed its first anniversary. You ask us if our year has been a busy one. It has. Four members graduated and five new ones were admitted. One of our alumnae is already in a high school library. Whenever possible we aid the librarian in her work and endeavor at our meetings to read and discuss current as well as classic literature.

Perhaps a resume of what the library is, what it aims to be, and what it does would not be amiss.

The Normal School library aims to be a center of school activity. Only three years ago the organization was begun and owing to the work of the students of the school under Miss Pritchard's splendid direction, a good working library has been built up. Its aim is to furnish material for research on all subjects, not only by supplying the necessary books but also by encouraging the use of its constantly growing collection of periodicals and illustrative material. With bulletin boards for current pictures and clippings, exhibits of books, helps for teachers, notices of plays, lectures, musical events and new books, an opportunity is given for information along all lines of educational endeavor.

The library hours have come to mean a great deal to the children of the training school. At times, they have library lessons, story telling, and freedom for browsing among the books in the children's corner.

Instruction is given to all classes of the school in the use of books and libraries, and an effort is made to have everyone enjoy the library and to have everyone know what it stands for in school work.

Basketball.

Although having but few available basketball men, Normal decided to put a team on the floor this year. With the aid of a couple of town players a good team was organized and many interesting games were played. Much credit must be given for the fighting qualities which the team displayed, as is shown by the fact that Normal won out in several overtime affairs, in one case piling up a high total in the extra five minutes of play. Pickett, Stevens, and Burke were the Normal men who played regularly.

At the beginning of the season the Bridgewater Club team, one of the fastest amateur in the state, applied for permission to play in the gym and an arrangement was made whereby Normal played most of its games in conjunction with this team, thus providing for a good evening's entertainment.

Although there was no tournament held last year, the tennis season of 1919 was a most successful one.

From the appearances of things now it looks as if the spring season of 1920 is going to be a still better one. The courts are in fine condition and everything is ready for those who are interested in tennis.

This year the members of the Club are able to purchase balls at the School Store and in this way they receive them at a reduced rate.

The Club is looking forward to a most successful year, with many contestants for the tournament of 1920.

Miss P-nn-ck—"Miss B-sh—, you may conduct the class."

Miss B-sh—"Class, attention! Arms stretching; upward, sideways, and backward, in series, beginning with the left foot, go!"

Heard in physiology—"The perfect man is the normal man."

1 evening + 1 walk = no lessons next day.

Heard in Gymn—"What instrument measures the capacity of the lungs?"

Answer—"Gasometer."

Heard in Model School—"You may parse the word 'fools.' "

Class—"Fools; masculine gender."

Mr. S-nn-t—"How did the soil out in the fields happen to come there?"

Miss T-rn-r—"It slid down."

Example of how Miss J-cks-n would teach number series from 1-10.

Miss J.—"Now what does a parrot do?"

Class—"He says what you say."

Miss J.—"Now you all be little parrots."

Comment: What's the use of Normal schools?

Mr. S-nn-t—"How is wind measured?"

Miss C. S-ll-v-n—"Speedometer!"

The student of chemistry who, after all Mr. Sh-w's careful teaching "mistook" sulphuric acid for water has the following lines on her tombstone, placed there by members of her class:

"Here lies Lillian Johnson,
Now she is no more,
What she thought was H 2 O
Was H 2 SO<sub>4</sub>."

St. Peter to new applicant from B. N. S. waiting at the Golden Gate—"What right have you to be admitted?"

B. N. S. Member—"Never cut school, got "A" in History of Ed., "Phsyche" and Nature Study. Subscribed to the Liberty Loans, Red Cross, and my room is papered with Thrift Stamps."

St. Peter—"Did you subscribe to the Normal Offering?"

Student—"No!"

St. Peter—"Elevator going down at the right!"

Heard in an eighth grade in Quincy:

Edward—"Hey—Len—doesn't that new teacher's hat make you think of a hen?"

Len—"Yah—but doesn't the teacher make you think of a chicken?"

What did you enjoy most in France, Madame asked a member of B. N. S. of a returned tourist.

"Well, I think it was the French Pheasant singing the 'Mayonnaise'."

Teacher—"Can you give me a sentence with 'defense' in it?"

Bright Child—"Yes 'm! De cat is on de fense."

Student Teacher—"What do you known about Clay?"

Voice from rear—"They make bricks of it."

Miss R-g-rs in reading class—"Thunderstruck stood Crusoe."

"Caruso stood thunderstruck."

Miss M-ff-t—"So we have Caruso with us?"

Miss C. to Miss M-s-s—"Did you say the Story of my Life was in the school library?"

Miss C.—"Helen Keller's, I mean."

Miss M-s-s looks relieved.

Notice at chapel exercises:

Mr. B-yd-n—"Notice has been received that Julius Caesar has been lost."

Miss C-bb—"I saw Julias Caesar in the biology room."

A Problem in Arithmetic

A girl can walk a mile in twenty minutes and it is one quarter of a mile from Normal to the movies.

Why is it, then, that she can leave the pictures at 8:30 and get in at exactly 9:30?

(Puzzle, isn't it? Not to those who know!)

Perhaps some jokes are old,
And should be on the shelf,
But if you know some better ones,
Hand in a few yourself.

HOWEVER much they appreciate the unpaid favors of their friends good business men depend only on paid service for results.

The most successful teachers use paid teachers' agencies and as reliable agencies charge commissions only when candidates accept positions, all wise growing teachers register with at least one. Confer at once with an agency whose manager was a Massachusetts' superintendent and, since 1897, has secured a large number of positions for Bridgewater graduates.
